The Path of Light: Essays in Moral Formation

Season I: Foundations of Attention and Discipline

Dennis Houchin | Ad Hoc Press | English

Season I lays the foundation for a life ordered by truth rather than impulse. Across ninety daily essays, it explores attention, discipline, self-governance, and the habits that make moral formation possible. The volume considers how distraction weakens judgment, how impatience distorts desire, and how steady practice restores proportion to ordinary life.

Season II: Governance of Thought and Will

Dennis Houchin | Ad Hoc Press | English

Season II deepens the work begun in Season I by turning moral responsibility inward. Thought, desire, judgment, and will are treated not as neutral byproducts, but as formative powers that shape character long before action becomes visible. Where the first season established order and attentiveness, this volume examines how inner movements are governed, refined, and brought into alignment with truth.

Jimmy and Jenny and the Haunted Cabin

A Mystery of the American Frontier

Dennis Houchin | Ad Hoc Press | English | Jimmy and Jenny, Adventure 1

Twins Jimmy and Jenny expect their family camping trip to bring hiking, wildlife, and a chance to practice using a map and compass. They do not expect a runaway rabbit, a sudden storm, or a mysterious cabin hidden deep in the woods.

Inside, the twins discover secrets that have been hidden for more than two centuries. A frontier hunter needs their help, but first they must separate fact from legend, follow the clues, and find evidence that others will believe.

The adventure is fictional, but the history behind it is real. Historical and Biographical Notes introduce young readers to the surviving accounts and the author's family connection to Lewis Green.
